ACO Building Drainage sponsors seminar programme at London show

ACO Building Drainage is to sponsor the Architectural & Design Evolution seminar programme at this year's Vision London exhibition, aimed at specifiers, architects and their clients.

Vision London, being held on June 6th and 7th at Olympia, brings together some of the best designs from across Western Europe and provides an international focus for innovative products and building solutions.

Comprising a series of top level talks and project case studies delivered by clients, architects, engineers and consultancies, the seminar programme will highlight the latest innovations in the profession. Core themes will include how sustainability runs through the heart of buildings and spaces, and the findings of the RIBA client-architect relationship study.

The programme and exhibition is CPD certified. As well as Architectural & Design Evolution, other themes are Materials Innovations and Technological Insight.

Commenting on the sponsorship, Andy Buchan, Divisional Managing Director of ACO Building Drainage, said: "As a leading drainage provider, we recognise how important it is to protect urban space from changes in our climate and rainfall patterns, and to ensure that buildings manage waste water efficiently. This seminar programme supports this by providing architects with information about the latest innovations and thinking around the design of buildings and public space, and will help them to design solutions which meet current and future requirements."
