Cibes glass lift complements university listed building

When students return to accommodation at Newcastle University, they will be able to make use of a Cibes lift that complements the listed building it is installed in, while providing the latest in safe accessibility.

The A5000 used at the student accommodation is one of Cibes' most popular models. There are eight different platform sizes to choose from, with the capability to taking a load of up to 4-5 people (400-500kg).

This model is designed to fit seamlessly into both new and existing buildings and in the Newcastle case, it was installed in the stairwell, to keep as much of the space as possible and help to maintain the building's original features. The glass shaft and panoramic doors of the lift preserve the natural light of the building.

Thanks to the simplicity of their modular design, Cibes lifts can be installed with minimal building works and alterations. They are safe and easy to use, making them a great option for student accommodation.
