Structural Waterproofing Seminars available on demand from Delta Membranes

Delta Membranes is offering specifiers and customers a way to boost productivity, stay motivated and then develop their skills during these challenging times.

During the first lockdown in 2020, Delta's technical team has worked tirelessly and pulled out all the stops to deliver industry leading "on demand" seminars. Produced by experts and leading professionals within Structural Waterproofing, the 'on demand' seminars provide you with the flexibility to learn and develop your skills where and when suits you best.

The structural waterproofing seminars have been carefully constructed to develop correct product specification, design philosophy and application suitable for those currently working in the structural waterproofing industry or designing systems.

The on demand' seminars are pre-recorded and accessible online via the website when you need them. You can start a seminar at any time with the added ability to stop and restart as needed. The seminars provide a great technical insight into structural waterproofing projects – from active leak stopping to effective waterproofing for underpinning sections of a structure.

These seminars define problems and solve these with both a technical approach but also of one which will offer the structure a life-cycle oriented approach.

Benefits for attendees include:

- Increasing awareness of the range of evidence-based practices in structural waterproofing
- Integrating evidence-based practices into structural waterproofing design philosophy and practice
- Identifying design, supply and construction of structural waterproofing projects
- Identifying factors that influence project success
- Explore industry and regulatory drivers
- Implementing strategies that foster best practice
- Assists those who are looking to achieve industry qualifications such as CSSW
- Assists those seeking approval for the Waterproofing Design Register
- Awareness of availability of products, resources and services.

On demand' seminars are available for free. Registration is simple – either click on the "not yet registered" link on the training page on the website www.deltamembranes.com/training or email rachelm@deltamembranes.com.
