Flexseal joins Made in Britain group

As the demand for 'British Made' increases both in the UK and around the world, Flexseal is aligned with that demand for high quality, high performing and innovative British made products.

To support its position, Flexseal has become an official member of 'Made in Britain', an organisation bringing together a community of British manufacturers, raising the profile of the industry.

Flexseal began trading over 30 years ago and has been the key influencer over British and European standards within its sector (flexible couplings). Demonstrating exceptionally high-quality manufacturing and an ability to rapidly innovate have been critical ingredients to the company's success in supporting improved sector standards and specifications. This history, Flexseal states, serves as evidence that Britain produces some of the best manufacturers in the world.

"Our identity as a British manufacturer is extremely important to us and our customers throughout the ongoing supply chain," states Ryan Lockwood, Marketing Manager for Flexseal UK. "Britain has always been at the forefront and heart of industrialisation supported by strong manufacturing. It's part of our culture, it adds value around the world and we feel extremely privileged to be able to strengthen the Flexseal brand with the 'Made in Britain' mark."

Flexseal joins a growing number of construction product manufacturers within the 'Made in Britain' network and is dedicated to playing its part in continuing to build the profile of British manufacturing around the world.
