Groundtrax pleased to be part of Constructionline

Ground protection systems specialist Groundtrax has joined Constructionline.

Constructionline is the UK's leading procurement and supply chain management service that collects, assesses and monitors standard company information through a question set that is aligned to PAS 91, the standardised pre-qualification questionnaire developed by BSI to reduce duplication within the construction industry.

Many of the UK's largest main contractors use Constructionline to improve their supply chain management processes. Constructionline also works in co-operation with the government to ensure common minimum standards in pre-qualification.

Groundtrax manufactures ground reinforcement products for numerous applications including access for construction sites and temporary car parks. Its cost-effective panels are simple to install and fully tested for durability and include heavy-duty models suitable for tracked vehicles.
