Integrity Software Builds Technology Partnership with TBS Enterprise Mobility

Construction management solution provider, Integrity Software, has announced its new partnership with long-standing enterprise mobility firm, TBS Enterprise Mobility.

Integrity has joined forces with TBS in order to extend and enhance its Evolution range of construction management software solutions, to provide an end-to-end mobility platform created to meet the specific challenges of construction businesses which provide planned or reactive maintenance services.

Justin Moule, Managing Director of the Construction Software Division at Integrity, led the search for a mobile technology partner. He said: "We provide a comprehensive construction management solution, supporting efficient and effective financial and operational functions. In order to further improve our product capability, we required a partner who would enable us to maximise our mobility offering, and TBS was the perfect fit.

"TBS impressed us with its aggressive road-map to drive forward the development of mobile technology uptake in the corporate space. TBS's TaskMaster platform has underpinned the significant enhancements we have delivered in terms of the usability and flexibility of our works orders and PDA software. TBS already powers 80 per cent of customers that use our works orders functionality."

TaskMaster has provided Integrity with cross-platform capability, compatible with a wide range of mobile devices and operating systems, such as Android, Windows and iOS, giving construction firms complete flexibility and control over expenditure when implementing the use of mobile technology into their business.

Steve Reynolds, Managing Director of TBS, added: "We are delighted to partner with Integrity, which is leading the way for mobile technology adoption in the construction sector. This is an exciting time for construction businesses, with emerging mobile technologies creating an array of opportunities to overcome the tough and complex challenges facing the industry in a cost-effective way."

Established for 20 years, TBS is at the forefront of enterprise mobility throughout industry and around the world. Go to www.tbsmobility.com for more information. Integrity Software has more than 800 customers in the construction sector and is part of the Integrity Software Group. For more details, visit www.integrity-software.net .
