Jackpad completes purchase of new warehousing and office facilities

Leicestershire-based Jackpad Ltd has completed the purchase of new warehousing and office facilities in Churchill Way, Fleckney. The company, which was founded in 2000, has grown substantially, supplying portable foundations for modular and portable buildings in the UK, the United States and Australia.

Managing Director Kris Cartwright said: "We are delighted to have completed on the purchase of our new office and warehouse facility in Fleckney, it will enable us to be even more efficient and allows for future growth. We plan to move from our existing warehouse by the end of February and then to relocate our offices from Enderby by March this year."

The new building, which comprises of 420 square metres of warehousing space, will enable the company to site its warehouse and offices in one location with all the benefits that brings. Jackpad's portable foundations which are LABC registered have been used in many prestigious locations, including Windsor Castle, the London Olympic village, Foreign and Commonwealth Office, the media centre for the Commonwealth Games and many education, health and utilities sector projects around the UK.
