New Industrial Partitioning Service from Jtech Services

Jtech Services are pleased to announce that they are now able supply and install a complete range of industrial partitioning systems.

For separating warehouses and creating secure storage facilities there is the mesh panelling system, which is bolted together and sits in a steel track system. Overhead cover can also be installed to give a more secure environment.

To give a low cost, solid partition panel, we have a single skin system that is also bolted together to create a metal wall between units.

For factory office space or control room applications, we have a double skin partitioning system that can be insulated to help with heat retention or sound reduction. Suspended ceilings are often included in this package along with flooring.

Due to the flexibility of our system Jtech Services can also mix and match the various systems to create the style and accommodation that any site application demands.

Once fabricated all panels are finished in a powder coat colour of the client's choice from any RAL colour that is available.

For clients who already have already acquired a system or just want an existing one moved Jtech Services would be pleased to offer a labour only package to either install or to dismantle and re-install.
