Q-railing is now ISO 9001:2015 certified

The internationally leading Enforcing Authority TÜV Rheinland has certified Q-railing according to the revised international quality standard ISO 9001:2015. This shows that the company's quality management system meets all of the high requirements for large organisations that operate internationally.

In 2012, the ISO member bodies decided to review the quality management systems standards of the ISO 9001. After intensive work, the structure and the core terms have been revised, so that the ISO 9001 also assimilates more easily with other international quality standards. In September 2015, the new quality standard ISO 9001:2015 was published.

The team at Q-railing are proud to work for one of the first companies worldwide being certified according to the new principles and requirements specified in the ISO 9001:2015. Q-railing will continue meeting the needs of its customers and other stakeholders, whilst fulfilling statutory and regulatory requirements of an international operating company.
