Railing London Offers Free iPad to Architects

To mark the coming of the new winter season, Railing London is proud to be offering a free Apple iPad to the first 50 architects who refer projects over £10,000 during October and November.

Railing London specialises in balustrade and staircases in glass metal and wood, and is leading the next generation of glass baluster systems. The company works closely with architects, interior designers and project managers to produce visually stunning installations.

Take a look at the Railing London gallery click here to see the quality of works the company produces, and then you will understand why Railing London is the UK's number one glass balustrade and staircase installer.

Another way Railing London makes life easier for architects is to make CAD Blocks available for all its balustrade systems as well as engineering calculations. No more designing balustrades then trying to match them to products available, just design them from the start with the original CAD blocks, with all calculations and dimensions!

proud to announce the launch of its new online project management system, where its clients can now log in and see the status of the projects at hand.

No more chasing people on the phone, or lost email communications, all the project information is now available to the architect, the project manager and the client at all times!
