SE Controls Follows Fresh Air Theme in Charity Support

Continuing its yearly support for worthy charities, this year SE Controls has opted to raise awareness and funds for Macmillan Cancer Support. Fund-raising activities are being held throughout the year with various staff events.

The fun started with a cake baking competition on March 7th. Further events include a Royal Wedding office fancy dress event, a 'curry cook off' in May, and a go karting event in October. One of the main events, taking place in the summer, will be a charity bike ride with the Macmillan theme of 'We love fresh air', which sits well within the company's range of systems and services providing natural ventilation products for building projects.

Macmillan nurses offer much-needed advice, information and support to people with cancer. They help them make informed decisions about their treatment, and guide them through the maze of different services. They also offer emotional support and help people with cancer deal with their symptoms and pain.

Macmillan nurses support people when they are first diagnosed and throughout their illness. They also offer help and information to families, friends, carers and local communities. Thanks to the generosity of supporters, there are now nearly 3,000 Macmillan nurses throughout the UK. Most of the nurses are employed by the NHS, so their services are free.

Should you wish to support the charity events or wish to know more about the systems and services supplied by SE Controls, visit the website at www.secontrols.com for further information or call the head office in Lichfield on 01543 443060.
