Servaclean units help bar owners use outdoor space for re-opening

Mobile bar units from Servaclean are an ideal way for businesses to safely serve customers outdoors while complying with Covid-19 social distancing rules.

With huge regulatory changes in relation to how people can be served and these set to be in place for a long time, many bar owners are contemplating how they will be able to serve valued customers safely. The outdoor space at your venue could be the perfect way to ensure your bar can open in some capacity but that you will also be adhering to social distancing guidelines.

Servaclean's FOLDABar and MOVERBar units, which can easily be moved outside onto patios, beer gardens or even on-site car parks where feasible, are ideal. They are quick to move around and can be positioned anywhere, especially outside, so you can maximise and control spaces and people effectively.

The FOLDABar stainless steel portable bar is the perfect folding bar with all the operating benefits of a Servaclean fitted bar system. These portable bar units are easy to assemble, fold, transport and store, making them ideal pop-up bar counters outside and then put away and stored safely overnight.

Following similar lines, MOVERBar is the ideal mobile bar station for any venue. A stainless-steel mobile bar on wheels, MOVERBar offers the same high-quality operating benefits of a Servaclean fixed bar system on a sturdy, easy-to-manoeuve portable base, to allow you to position it and serve your customers from wherever you want.

The only difference between the units is often your space and serving requirements, so please ask the Servaclean team about this when you get in touch. The team can also advise about payment plans for eligible businesses.
