Servaclean keeps on helping customers through lockdown

Servaclean Bar Systems continued working through the lockdown, to help many customers old and new to carry out bar refurbishments.

The team at Servaclean successfully adapted the business to allow staff to work from home without compromising its 'free-of-charge' bar planning service. This, along with the dedicated warehouse staff and installation team, has enabled many new customers to complete their bar refurbishments within just a few weeks from their initial enquiry with Servaclean.

A loyal repeat customer base has also been active, with several choosing to use the downtime productively and refurbish existing bar facilities, or add value to their venue offer, with portable bars and outside counters ready to capitalise on any available trade when the sun has shone.

Below are a few highlights of what the team has been up to:

- More than 150 new bars planned since March, for both indoor and outdoor bar areas, with specialist designs to help businesses reopen after restrictions were lifted.
- Outside / portable counters supplied to venues in Harrogate, Covent Garden and the Orkney Islands and to mobile event companies in Essex and the Midlands.
- Carried out installations in Colchester, Liverpool, London and beyond for bars that have had hygiene at the forefront of their mind and used this period to upgrade their existing offering.

New website pages have also been added to highlight the benefits of The Sustainable Bar and Bar Hygiene and to show customers' feedback.

Servaclean is also proud to have turned 32 years old on August 1st (Yorkshire Day) and would like to thank customers who continued to support the company through lockdown and wish 'good luck' to all venues re-opening especially those with new, existing or refurbished Servaclean bars.
